The number of white bars on a sheet decreases with increasing leaf order. ...indicating differential development in a lateral direction. These streaks may also arise from earlier, shorter leaves. When moving from leaf to leaf, like... Read more The number of white stripes on a leaf decreases as the order of the leaves increases. Shorter leaves form more white stripes. The leaves at the top of the shoots have shorter white stripes than the leaves at the base of the shoots. Thus, all leaves on the shoot have the same number of white stripes. ... indicating differential development in the lateral direction .
