Thursday, March 9, 2010 Adam Smith: a Radical for His Time? "The Wealth of Nations, a Book which reveals the cause of the riches of some nations, and the wretchedness of others, tells us that riches consist not in what a nation has, or in what it has in quantity, but in what it is capable of doing or making." Adam Smith's Moral Sentiments (1759) One of the more important books to influence Adam Smith's understanding of economics was the Inquiry into the Nature and Causes of the Wealth of Nations (1776), whose ideas had a profound influence on Smith himself and on subsequent philosophers of economics. Despite the fact that Smith considered himself a moral philosopher, the Inquiry (to which Adam Smith refers in his quote above) stands as an important landmark in the development of social science as well as of economics. James Boswell's Life of Samuel Johnson (1791) contains a very vivid character sketch of the chief notableness of his life. The sketch includes a number of quotations from various times and authors of which only the following seem relevant to Smith: "Poor Adam Smith, he got no higher than his station; but his observations have penetrated to the highest regions of human thought, and are found in all succeeding schools."

There are four different routes in this scenario pack, all playing from Chatham. You may operate on either of these routes. First Capital Connect Class 319 EMU Add-On is the operating equipment required. If a scenario refers to a request for a train to be 'stopped' then the scenario still completes but you may not get the request to stop your train, so please be prepared to accept the request at an alternative stop. All scenarios are based on events that have actually happened - they are not fictional. There are many real-life challenges and difficulties on this busy line. Each scenario includes a notational route description and at least one starting point and destination. If a scenario includes a stop anywhere other than the first and last stations then these stops may be either in service or out of service. Note that we cannot make guarantees about the difficulty of any scenario but we have tried to put all scenarios in roughly the same difficulty tier. When you start each scenario, you will get a 10 second delay before the scenario starts. This means that you have ten seconds to assess your route, the scenario and possible responses to the scenario and other players. Scenarios are set up to take about 20 minutes, but you will need to set-up the scenario for yourself. The scenario pack includes comprehensive set-up directions and a scenario guide. The scenarios are all based on real scenarios that happened and you can make decisions based on what you have learnt from your previous simulations. Players must operate the routes from a train driver perspective. The scenarios can be tricky but not impossible. There are no rules about turning points and there is only a limited number of 'stops' to make per scenario. You must only stop at stop positions and not at roundabouts or at crossovers, even if there is nowhere else to go. There are some stop positions where trains cannot stop. Stops are either in service or out of service. The scenario pack includes a comprehensive scenario guide, route description, set-up instructions and detailed scenarios on the pages shown below. Good luck and let's operate the Chatham Mainline as we have known it for many years. Question: How do I view, edit and manage my scenarios? See FAQ "How do I view, edit and manage my scenarios?" for the details. To clarify, scenarios and set-ups are viewable and editable via the TS Sim Marketplace under Game: Games - Scenarios, Scenario Packs. Scenario Packs are downloadable for £4.99 each. You have two weeks to
