Re: windows live product key tool like mykeys.co.uk??? Hi, I know it's not exactly a programming related question, but this is quite similar (and this link might be useful): Make your Windows Live ID speak your language (when creating a mail account or an online account) This looks useful. Are you able to post an example here? Or is it too long to type out. I don't have any of these requirements, but if I had one of these tools, I could create a new account with my desired name and contact information. This would avoid my first concern about how the tool works. Also, the problem I'm facing with the makerID is that I have two websites on the Internet using different URLs (if I had only one, I'd use the MSDN Domains). Both are the same except for the .com. I'm not interested in using one of them for my accounts, but rather created my own domains. The point of this question is that I'm looking for a tool that could help me in this matter.
